Introduction to SendOutCards™ projecting Positive Expectations

Hello, first we sent you a SendOutCard™ so you could see how easy it would be to become a distributor of the system to send positive character messages to peers, children and parents, starting within the grassroots.

Secondly, we now send you this sticker to match to the blank showing the powers of positive message puzzle stickers or photo message labels. Have a young child match up this sticker with the blank we sent you. Know that the children will enjoy this positive message with some anticipation from week to week.

Positive Expectations work as follows:

Grades K-3

30 sticker sheets of 6 puzzle stickers and 6 -8.5x11 one message blanks are sent to you at home. This allows you to design your own positive outcome from the message, and it can be customized to each child if needed. Plus, this sheet can be used to communicate and teach English and Home languages. Maybe with the help of the parent? Plus, the sheet can even be used blank for the child to explain the positive message to you while they solve the puzzle.

There is no end to how you can use this to build positive expectations and character. You will have the child's attention and engagement, in part, because of the puzzle.

The web site has a list of many motivational and inspirational messages. PLUS, stories that support them. Read the INTRODUCTION at the bottom to find storybooks with multiple messages indexed.

Grade 3-6. (Not sampled, call or email me)

In this case the package is 30 sets of 6 photographs and message labels. Here you ask the student to match a label to the photo and explain how to keep it positive. You will be able to ask the student to come up with pictures from magazines for the full set of labels you give them. The stickers in the set will cover as many as 24 photos or pictures. Each message is repeated 4 times.

There is no end to how you can use this to build motivation, engagement, positive expectations and character. You will have the child's attention because the label and photo cause discussion. The web site lists chapter book stories that support the message. This information is just a portion of the stories supporting the messages on the web site. See also the INTRODUCTION at the bottom.

In summary, if the positive expectation materials don't work for you, and you have the books, stories and inspiration you still can work with any of our content off the web site. IT IS FREE! Truly, if we can help you inspire and motivate the children we will be happy with that. USA VALUES, LLC combined with SendOutCards™ is a grassroots development so it is unlikely that all your peers or moms have been exposed to this. Please share it with them.

You could make plans to go into this business with them. Please consider becoming a distributor of how to use the FREE message. I wish to discuss this with you. See contact below.

Please opt-in if you like and follow us on twitter. We are planting grassroots!

One of these traditional discussions of values, assets and attributes and elementary messages are given upon opt-in. If you would like to review all of them please contact me.
